

WHITE PACKING
PLANT IS SOLD
TO COURTS FIRM

$500,000 Additional Capital Will Be Provided by Reorganization Plan Now Under Way.

BIG SUM INVOLVED IN TRANSACTION

Courts and Company, New Owners, Begin Operation Under Most Favorable Conditions.

In a deal involving between $700,000 and $1,000,000, the White Provision company was purchased Friday by Courts & Co., Atlanta investment bankers, and a new company will be formed at once and provided with $500,000 additional cash working capital and with total assets of $1,500,000. Confirmation of the transaction was obtained by The Constitution from Courts & Co. Friday night.

Under terms of the deal Courts & Co. bought outright the great modern packing plant of the White Provision company, located on the Howell Mill road, and arrangements have been made for obtaining competent management of the plant under the new operative company. The new company, it was learned, will begin business with $500,000 current assets, approximately $1,500,000 total assets, no current liabilities and with no debt save $520,000 five-year first mortgage bonds.

Officers and directors of the new company have not been selected, but their names will be announced as soon as a charter for the new company is obtained.

Big Plant Is Modern

The White Provision company is one of the most modern packing plants in the United States and distributes several widely-known brands of meat products packed at the plant here.

Stockholders in the old company will receive cash dividends, it was stated, and will exchange their stock on a share for share basis for stock in the new company. It is understood that stockholders in the old company also will be given opportunity to buy additional stock in the new company.

With ample financial backing and with steady increases in cattle production reported during the last year in Georgia, the new company will begin business under most favorable conditions and with all obstacles to success removed. The growth of the cattle industry in Georgia during the last year has been substantial, according to government figures. Decreases in production had been shown for several years until last year, when the trend changed and increases were reported.

More Cattle Raised.

The success of the "cow, hog and hen" movement in stimulating cattle production is given as one of the reasons for the increase, and figures obtained from the State College of Agriculture show that the next year's increase in cattle and hog production will be even greater. It was only after a careful survey of these conditions that the deal was closed Friday by Courts & Co.

Operation of the White Provision company also will continue to provide a market in Atlanta for cattle and hogs and will assure continued operation and probable expansion of the immense union stock yards located near the plant of the company.

Approximately $700,000 was paid by Courts & Co. for the packing plant and with other expenditures, the deal will involve approximately $1,000,000. The $500,000 additional working capital will be available immediately.

Courts & Co. held an option on the company for several weeks, the option being exercised Friday.

Rid Yourself
Of Body Poisons!

It is just as important to eliminate body poisons as it is to remedy the cause of their occurrence in your body. Do you know that the average person is only half alive?

You probably have "off days," when you simply haven't got a bit of pep? Know what is wrong? You are probably stuffing yourself with foods that will not combine—foods that are working overtime generating gas and poisons in your system.

Dr. McCoy tells you how to remedy this in his daily articles in The Constitution.

Foul Play Feared
In Disappearance
Of Atlanta PastorSCOTLAND YARD
SMASHES SAFES
OF SOVIET RUSSIA

All Through Night Workmen Labor With Drills To Bore Their Way Into Strong Rooms.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

London, May 13.—The drama of the raid on the Soviet firm of Arcos, Ltd., is developing rapidly. Spectacular events are occurring tonight. At the time this cable is being filed (midnight), police, detectives and expert "cracksmen" are breaking open safes and strong rooms at the Soviet house, the keys to which have been received from Soviet officials. Safebreakers using pneumatic drills and oxyacetylene flames are piercing the plant.

The quiet of the city streets is broken by the machine gun-like roar and rattle of the drills in the attempt to wrest the secrets from the concrete embedded safes and strong rooms.

The strong rooms were built into the cellars of the premises when the building was erected. The doors are ten feet high and weigh more than 2,000 pounds each.

British Papers Sought.

It is understood that the object of the search is for highly confidential British cabinet documents known to have passed into unauthorized hands and the possibility of judicial proceedings depends upon the result of the examination.

Five expert workmen are manipulating the drilling apparatus, while others are standing by with picks and shovels in order to clear up the debris. It was late tonight when the safebreaking gang arrived, specially chartered by the chief commissioner, city police and a squad of special detail men from Scotland Yard. A huge auto truck brought the heavy, unyielding drills, tubes and tools, while covered, the supposed workmen were directed to the building.

The attack on the other strong rooms then proceeded. The police were dealing with before attention is directed to the locked safes.

At the back of the Arcos house a portable engine is pumping water into the cellars, the idea being that while the workers are protected by solid phalanxes of uniformed police, keeping back the masses of curious spectators.

Rattle of Drills.

The intermittent bursts from the rattle of drills and the oxygen plant pierced the night as fresh spots in the concrete surrounding the safes was attacked. In addition to the drills a collection of other safebreaking instruments was brought up periodically while officials hurried up through the police guards with architectural looking documents, apparently the plans of the interior structure of the building.

It is understood that the method of penetration will be by piercing the concrete floor upward and downward through to the strong rooms, this being an easier way to effect an entrance than through the actual concrete doors to the rooms.

It was discovered in the attack on the second strong room that a couple of feet of brick work had to be pierced and as anticipated, a steel lining was found.

COUSINS FOUND

DEAD SAME DAY
IN VILLAGE HOMES

Spartanburg, S. C., May 13.—(AP)—James Cooper and Dock Hembree, first cousins, were found dead in bed shortly before midnight last night at their homes at Arkwright Mill village. Death is believed to have occurred at about the same time. Cooper was aged 34 and Hembree 31. The men lived in different sections of the village. Heart disease was the cause in each case.

Threats in Letters Only Clue to Mysterious Disappearance of Dr. R. G. Hershey.

POLICE GUARD HOME OF WIFE AND SON

Pastor of Peachtree Road Presbyterian Church Reported Missing Since Last Monday.

Fearing foul play, members of the congregation of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church, of Atlanta, Friday urged police of this city and of Birmingham, Ala., to institute a search for the Rev. R. G. Hershey, pastor of the local church, who disappeared last Monday after concluding his morning services. Letters, said to have been received by Dr. Hershey several days prior to his mysterious disappearance, and alleged to have been mailed by former inmates of the Alabama reformatory, at Birmingham, of which Dr. Hershey was chaplain before receiving a call from the Atlanta church, were viewed by relatives and friends of the missing minister to form an important clue to a solution of the mystery.

According to information given Atlanta and Birmingham detectives by Mrs. Hershey and by members of Dr. Hershey's congregation, the minister intended to travel by railroad to Birmingham on a late train Monday and had made preparations to return here Tuesday after concluding some business transactions in that city. His wife and young son were to remain there until June 1.

Came Here April 1.

Dr. Hershey had come to Atlanta on April 1 as pastor of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church, but his wife had remained in Birmingham in order that their son might not be compelled to change schools before the term was closed.

Late last week Dr. Hershey is said to have talked to members of the church regarding letters received by him from a boy who had been a former inmate of the Birmingham reformatory, in which letter was a request for money and a statement which suggested a threat.

On Monday, it was said, Dr. Hershey drove his automobile to the home of one of his church members by arrangement and parked it with the intention of calling for it upon his return from Birmingham. That is the last trace of him, it is said. The minister's residence is at the home of J. E. Knott since coming to this city.

Missing Since Monday.

When Dr. Hershey failed to appear for regular prayer service Wednesday night members of the congregation became alarmed and communicated with Mrs. Hershey in Birmingham only to learn that the pastor had not arrived there as he was scheduled to do.

Mrs. Hershey said she had received a wire from a former reformatory inmate in which the latter said that Dr. Hershey would be in Birmingham Thursday. This appearance failed to materialize and police aid was asked Friday morning.

From Birmingham came news Friday night that a special police squad had been placed over Mrs. Hershey's home. No one in that city reported having seen Dr. Hershey and police of both cities were inclined to the belief that the local pastor disappeared either in Atlanta or en route to the Alabama city.

Atlanta detectives assigned to the case were told Friday by a member of the Peachtree Presbyterian church that Dr. Hershey had complained of a severe headache Monday morning. Authorities, however, are cooperating with Birmingham police in the theory that a former reformatory inmate had sought revenge on the minister for fancied grievances. One of the youths suspected is said to live in Atlanta and to be missing from his home.

Dr. Hershey is described by church members as being one of the most popular ministers ever to serve the church.

FLIERS DECIDE
ACROSS OCEAN

If Lindbergh Hops Off First Bellanca Plane Will Wait His Success or Failure.

CONTEST DECLARED
"TOO DANGEROUS"

America, Piloted by Commander Byrd, Will Not Be Ready for Flight for Several Days.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, May 13.—There will be no race to Paris by air, it was definitely learned tonight.

Word came from each of the three camps which are prepared to send winged machines across the Atlantic that competition will not enter into the spirit of the enterprise. The reason: It is too dangerous.

If the spirited, lucky, curly-headed Captain Charles (Lucky) Lindbergh, with his Ryan-built "Spirit of St. Louis" steals a march on the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, he'll have the air above the ocean to himself until success or failure is definitely established. G. M. Bellanca announced.

"If Lindbergh takes off we will not follow," said Bellanca. "If he succeeds—and we certainly hope he does—the Columbia will not be headed to Paris at all."

Not Out for Race.

The 25-year-old demon of the air was informed of Bellanca's statement. "Why, I'm not out to race Clarence Chamberlain," he said. "I'm going to leave as soon as conditions permit, surely, but there's no feeling on my part of antagonism or even of rivalry toward any of the other fliers. They're like mighty nice to me; took me over their ships, helped me with charts. I've got the highest esteem for Bellanca."

From a highly authoritative source it was learned tonight that Commander Richard E. Byrd, chief pilot of the America, will not take off for some days. Despite numerous reports to the contrary, Bert Acosta will be Byrd's copilot. It is probable the America will not leave Roosevelt field until next week-end.

Apparently there will be no hop off by any of the three planes tomorrow. Weather conditions at sea were such

MEDAL GIVEN SAILOR FOR SAVING SHIPMATE

Mobile, Ala., May 13.—(AP)—William J. Lesso, a first-class engine-man, attached to the naval air station, is displaying a silver life saving medal of honor, which he just received through the commandant for his heroism, displayed in rescuing a shipmate at sea. The shipmate was washed into the ocean from the U. S. S. S. McDonough and was unable to reach the vessel. Lesso leaped into the sea and saved the man from drowning. This was in June of last year. The medal is presented with the congratulations of the secretary of the treasury.

MIAMI EDITOR PLANS AN APPEAL IN LIBEL ACTION

Miami, Fla., May 13.—(AP)—Tribune for T. M. Arnold, managing editor of the Miami Tribune, weekly newspaper, were today planning an appeal to the state supreme court from the ruling of a circuit court which denied a petition for the editor's release on a criminal libel charge brought by E. G. Sewell, Miami merchant and candidate for city commissioner.

Arnold has made bond and is at liberty after a day spent in the county stockade, where he prepared copy for today's issue of The Tribune.

Attorneys say they will base their appeal on allegations that the complaint is defective in that it does not charge malicious intent in the editorial written by Arnold, in which he charged that forgeries appeared on the nominating petition of Mr. Sewell.

Rogers Reduced MILK PRICES THREE WEEKS AGO

There could be no more convincing fact of our intention to sell food at the lowest prices than our reduction in the price of milk, which went into effect three weeks ago.

Bringing prices down to the lowest constant level in years, milk consumers of Atlanta were enabled to save thousands of dollars in the aggregate and we were amply repaid by the increased volume of milk sales.

Our prices were reduced permanently, THREE WEEKS AGO, and since that time patrons of Rogers' stores have enjoyed a daily saving on the cost of pure, cream-laden sweet milk.

Modesty prevents a plain, outright statement, but thinking people of Atlanta have determined for themselves who sets consistently the town's lowest prices. This is indicated in our record-breaking business this year and the doubling of our milk sales.

Leading Atlanta Business, Misses Douglas and Eager Named Professional Women

BY HERR MCKUSKER.

Atlanta has selected her preeminent daughters of the business and professional world.

To Miss Helen Douglas, attorney, and Miss Elizabeth Eager, business woman, this distinction has been given. The selection, announced Friday morning by Miss Rebecca Shuman, president of the Atlanta Business and Professional Women's club, was arranged by a special committee consisting of Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, George W. West, president of the chamber of commerce, and Miss Shuman.

The purpose of the selection is to name candidates for the state of Georgia to participate in the national contest which has been under way one month and which will conclude next July at the annual convention of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of America in Oakland, Cal. Two selections will be made at the convention, one as the preeminent business woman and the other as the preeminent professional woman of the country. The winners will be awarded a six weeks' tour of Europe as guests of the Extension of Women's Arts and Industries.

The names of Misses Douglas and Eager will be forwarded to the state committee as Atlanta's entries in the Georgia contest. This committee, in turn, will select winners from candidates submitted by cities of the state as state representatives in the national contest.

Judges' Task Difficult.

In announcing their decision, members of the Atlanta committee declared that selection of winners from a pretentious list of candidates forwarded by individuals and groups of the city had been a "most difficult task." In view of the fact that Atlanta prides itself on the fact that it has produced an array of talented women.

Biographies of Misses Douglas and Eager, as submitted by the city, pointing their respective candidates, attest to the worthiness of the committee's selection and indicates the high caliber of the candidates whose accomplishments made the selection such a difficult mission.

Miss Helen Douglas is distinguished in lines of endeavor other than that of her professional pursuit. She has served as national president of the Women's Overseas Service league and is an active member of the Atlanta Woman's club. Obtaining her A. B. degree at Rockford college, she was admitted to the bar in 1920 and opened a law office in Atlanta on March 1, 1924. After receiving an LL. B. at the Atlanta Law school, she was associated with the firm of Douglas and Douglas and became a lecturer in the Atlanta Law school.

When Miss Douglas first opened a law office here she signed a year's lease and gazed with some pardonable misgivings upon a bank balance of $18.89. Before trusting to her embryonic law practice for her daily bread Miss Douglas sold a story to Motor magazine for $40, cash in hand. The story was entitled "13,000 Manless Miles."

Hires Office. With this revenue as a floating fund, Miss Douglas hired an office boy, ordered a telephone and started seeking "a place in the sun." That she has found it within three years is attested by her selection in the contest just concluded. From the start the office was self-supporting. Miss Douglas practices in all courts, civil and criminal, and now employs a law clerk, who handles her less important work.

Last fall Miss Douglas managed the women's department of the committee which named I. N. Ragsdale as mayor. She has engaged also in many other civic activities and has won acclaim as one of Atlanta's most talented women.

Miss Elizabeth Eager, judged as Atlanta's foremost business woman, is a member of the firm of Eager & Simpson, counselors, 8 North Forsyth street, which nationally-known organization she was instrumental in establishing in 1929.

At the age of 17 Miss Eager began to lay the foundation for her brilliant business career by becoming affiliated with the firm of Delbert Manufacturing company, of New Jersey. Becoming interested in research work in home economics, she developed into one of the foremost authorities in medical and surgical supplies.

Recognized as a specialist in surgical and medical supplies, Miss Eager was sought by several concerns handling those lines. She came to Atlanta as secretary-treasurer of the Tailor-Made Corset company, later resigning to establish her own business establishment.

During the world war Miss Eager played a prominent role in supplying surgical supplies to army camps and cantonments, becoming a familiar figure at base hospitals, where she skillfully fitted garments upon patients under the eyes of the most noted surgeons and nurses. Her reputation as a result penetrated to all parts of the country and today virtually all large hospitals and private sanitariums in the United States are listed as customers of the firm which she operates.

AUTOMOBILES KILLED 71 HERE DURING YEAR

Atlanta had seven automobile fatalities during a four-week period which ended April 23. Five of those were results of accidents within the city's corporate limits, according to a report just compiled with the federal department of commerce. The seven deaths raised Atlanta total for the 52 weeks ending April 23 to 71, against a total of 49 for the corresponding period of the year previous, it was reported.

Four hundred and ninety-one persons lost their lives in automobile accidents in 78 large cities during the four-week period, the federal department of commerce announced. New York with 81, and Chicago with 51, claimed the greatest number of fatalities of the reporting cities. Detroit and Los Angeles each reported 30.

Eight of the 78 reporting cities went through the four weeks without a fatal automobile accident, the report said. They were Albany, N. Y., Birmingham, Fort Worth, Lowell, Norfolk, Oakland, Oklahoma City and Utica.

An increase of 8 per cent in automobile fatalities was reported for the 78 cities for the year ended April 23. The total number of fatalities was given as 6,925 as against 6,280 the year previous.

'MARDI GRAS' MARKS WHITE WAY OPENING

In celebration of the opening of its "white way" West End will hold "mardi gras" with an open air program featuring a parade, concert by the police band, and speeches by prominent Atlantans tonight, beginning at 6:15 o'clock at the corner of Lee and Gordon streets.

Chief of Police Beavers will lead the parade, with the police band, led by Miss Lillian Buford, of West End, next. In the marching order will be units from Joe Brown Junior High school, fire department, sanitary department, city and county officials, West End Business Men's association, Spanish war veterans, led by Post Commander J. P. Hanson, and representatives of other civic organizations.

Short speeches will be made by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, Guy Dobbs, Walter Stewart, county commissioner; George W. West, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and R. H. Davis, West End business man. The celebration is being staged by the West End Business Men's association, of which J. P. Faulkner is president, in recognition of the establishment of a 32-post white way, extending in four directions from the intersection of Lee and Gordon streets.

Folkston Holiday.

Mrs. Chester Johnson, retiring president of the West End Woman's club, and a group of officials whom she entertained Friday at a luncheon are shown in the above picture. ## NEW CHARTER LEADERS RAP PRESENT SYSTEM

Calling on citizens of Atlanta to weigh principles of government in voting May 25 on the proposed city manager charter for Atlanta, the citizens' charter committee Friday issued the third of a series of statements outlining advantages of the proposed new government. The statement follows:

"The question at issue in the charter election is a general principle of government. Nobody is going to agree with every single provision in the charter, but each one should consider it along the broad lines of general principles and leave the small points upon which there may be disagreement to be adjusted by amendment."

"There are just four forms of city government—councilmanic, federal, commission and council-manager. The councilmanic form is generally in use in the United States at the time of the revolution, and the kind under which Atlanta at present operates. It is managed through numbers of committees, with no controlling or coordinating head.

Federal Form Outlined. "Shortly after the revolution the federal system of city government came into vogue. It was patterned after the federal government, as its name denotes. This system was a vast improvement over the old, but it was not a success. It was a failure because its position depended upon parties, and it preferred civil life, free from manipulations, and secure in employment which could be retained for a lifetime.

"American cities became noted throughout the world for their inefficiency and graft. Bryce wrote in 'American Government' that the 'commission form of government' was 'the only one which has been able to stand the test of time.' It cured the defect of the councilmanic system, which was attempting to elect trained, technical city managers, but retained its good points. The most important points of the council-manager form of government are: A short ballot; separation of legislative and administrative functions; appointment of a technically trained man to care for the administrative functions of the city; the election of the council by all the people.

"We will glance at these points in their order: The short ballot makes it possible for the few candidates to stand out before the public, and be thoroughly investigated. The spotlight is upon them. A good feature of the commission form is the 'Vital Point' emphasized. 'The separation of legislative and administrative functions is the most vital point in the whole system. Those who form the policies of the city and pass the laws, in short, rule, are elected by the people and are responsible to the people and can be recalled by the people.

"Positions which call for technical experience and training are appointive, in order that the appointees may be selected with great care. They are the positions of city manager, heads of departments, etc. The voters cannot choose such persons easily for two reasons. First, because they must vote for those who offer themselves; they are qualified or not; second, men trained in administrative lines are seldom willing to offer for elective office, because they do not wish to be 'in' in politics.

"The election of the council by all the people is necessary to a democratic control of the city. 'If a voter only votes for the councilman from his own ward, he has no real power. Two councilmen are never a majority, and it means that

Jinx of Friday, the Thirteenth, Is Defied by Many Atlantans

BY BEN COOPER.

As the Gold Dust Twins remarked in 'Old Dutch Cucumber': "Lax against us, for today is Friday, the 13th."

Atlantans had all kinds of luck Friday, some of it good and some of it bad, but not enough of the "might be worse" variety to substantiate fears of the superstitious that Friday, the 13th is indeed a day of ill omen.

True, there were plenty of Atlantans who experienced bad luck Friday, but no more than on other days, and a number of cases of good luck, as witness three young ladies becoming proud fathers when new arrivals were registered at Grady hospital.

At least two Atlanta couples scoffed at the old Man, Horse, Luck, and the "avoid the ladder" crowd Friday when they chose Friday the 13th to prepare for a baby at matrimony. A marriage license was issued to Lewis E. Boud, 21, of 72 Spring street, and Miss Melba Hendrix, 19, of 130 Clara drive, while a notice was posted of the wedding of William Hamilton, 22, of 317 Boulevard, and Kathleen Tolan, 21, of 890 Ponce de Leon, for a license.

Some "Good Luck" Cash.

An example of mighty good luck on Friday, the 13th, was witnessed at the ordinary's office in the courthouse, where a total of $32,250 was being paid Confederate veterans and widows of veterans as pension money.

A "horse of almost another color" was found at the emergency clinic in Grady hospital, however, where an unusual number of minor injuries were treated during the day.

Among those who had sufficient bad luck Friday to require a visit to Grady were: Mrs. D. E. Sturgis, 54, of 1488 Marietta road, sprained left ankle; Perry Lassiter, 6, of 411 Lyle avenue, East Point, injured left arm; A. D. Poor, 42, 250 Hill avenue, in front of 204 North Decatur street, two slight lacerations on head; Hugh Camp, 12, of 36 Chapel street, mashed finger.

Four persons had the misfortune Friday of losing their cars to automobile thieves, according to reports to city detectives. Cars stolen were as follows: Henry M. or company, of 321 Court house, a touring car; D. G. Griffin, of 100 North avenue, N. W., a touring car; W. E. Nash, of the Capital City club, a brougham.

Thieves Defy "Luck."

Many persons suffered at the hands of the voter has only a voice in one election, and that is not, therefore, thoroughly represented.

Atlanta a Big Corporation. "We have in the council-manager charter a government comparable to a corporation. The voters of Atlanta are the stockholders; the stockholders elect their board of directors—the council—and the board of directors appoint the superintendent—the city manager.

"Atlanta is one of the biggest and most important of corporations. Our investment is our health and happiness. Our stock is the service rendered yearly by the city.

"The charter election will take place May 25. Citizens may register up to and including May 25, but should do it now and avoid the rush at the last moment, when they may have to stand in line."

WARE GRAND JURY RECOMMENDS REED FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Waycross, Ga., May 13.—(Special.) Judge Henry D. Reed, of the Waycross superior court circuit, is suggested for the next governor of Georgia by the Ware county grand jury. The jury says:

"When we recall some of the great names that have graced and ennobled the legal annals of this state; who have been eminent in their profession and have mastered it by courtesy, by reason and by the diligent exercise of judicial power, without regard to personal danger or consequences, it is a pleasure for us to give public expression of our faith and confidence in the ability of Judge H. D. Reed to stand abreast with his illustrious predecessors.

"We know that he believes in that spirit of leadership that causes men to make sacrifices for what they believe to be a cause, knowing that political preference and political success does not lie in personal ambition, and that in him as our highest court official we have exemplified such a spirit.

"We, his fellow citizens, think ourselves well warranted in saying that in our search for this great state for leadership that her sons could well look to her wisest section and choose her next governor from the bench of the Waycross judicial circuit."

HIGHWAY CONDITIONS REPORTED EXCELLENT

General conditions of main highways from Atlanta to principal cities of the state and south are in excellent condition, according to Miss Mary Bradley, tour counselor of the Atlanta Motor club, in a report given out Friday.

There are only a few miles of detour on a few of the roads, and in the majority of the cases the detour is in good condition and will permit small loss of time.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR ORGAN RECITAL

Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., city organist, will give a free recital at the city auditorium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The program follows: "First Lux," Theod. Dubetz, Intermezzo, Dethier, "Mirror Reflecting Pool," Shure, Andantino from the A Minor Sonata, Rheinberger, "An Elizabethan Lullaby," Noble, "Harmonies Du Soir," Sigrid Karg-Elert, Improvisation, "A Royal Procession," Spinner.

ATLANTA TO GET SHIPPING BOARD OFFICES SOON

The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet corporation will open an inland traffic office in Atlanta at an early date with N. P. Leary, of Washington, in charge. It was announced here Friday. The local office will have charge of the building up of foreign shipping from the southeastern states, it was said. The office was authorized by the shipping board on the request of the chamber of commerce, backed by United States Senators William J. Harris and Walter F. George.

HUNGER AND APPETITE.

One must learn to distinguish between the desire for only tasty dishes and real normal animal craving for food which comes only because of the body's longing for material with which to repair and build tissue. The danger of conditions lies in the fact that they excite the taste buds in the mouth to such an extent that more food is eaten than the body really needs for its nourishment. No energy is thus wasted in digesting this food which cannot be assimilated by the system, but only acts as a poison clog upon the normal functions of the body.

This congestion of toxins in the tissues is productive of discomfort and could not have appeared if the appetite had not been stimulated to produce an enormous appetite.

A body over-stuffed with food cannot enjoy simple dishes and the plain food so relished in childhood seems tasteless unless really over-saturated. Mother's cooking does not seem to taste for some time after it is eaten when a child only because you have accustomed your taste buds to the rich food which you are eating.

Exercise and give more as you did when a child and you will find a normal change returning for simple wholesome food.

Every individual of ordinary intelligence can easily learn his food requirements if he will be honest with himself.

It will take some study and experimentation, but the time spent in such investigation will amply repay you in increased health and efficiency.

Do you feel stoutly after meals? If so, you are over-eating. Do you feel gas a short time after eating? If so, you are eating too much! Do you wake up tired and with a coated tongue? If so, you are eating more than the body requires. Do you get sleepy in the afternoon? Perhaps you had better omit the noonday meal as you may not need it all and maybe you are only burdening yourself with materials which, if not needed by the body, only act as poison.

In all my experience as a dietitian, I have never found it advisable to urge a patient to eat more food as long as it is of the right quality. If you are under-weight, perhaps you are burdening yourself with so much food that you cannot digest and assimilate even the amount your body really requires and you may be suffering from real starvation because of this.

If your appetite is poor, it is a sure sign that you are eating entirely too much. Normal hunger returns for simple food. If you avoid stimulation of conditions to create an appetite, you will eat more food than your body needs at that time.

FLOOD DEVASTATION SEEN BY ATLANTAN

A telegram from Rodney Morison, Jr., was received Friday from Memphis, Tenn., by Mrs. Oona C. Moise, executive secretary of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, in which he pictured the desolation and destruction in the flood area and at the same time appealed to Atlantans to complete the city's quota of $50,000 for relief of flood victims.

Contributions received Friday amounted to less than $200, it was stated, and this city still is $1,000 under its quota, officials of the local Red Cross chapter stated.

Colonel A. A. Candler, chief secretary of the Salvation army left Thursday night for the stricken area to confer with officials concerning relief work regarding shipments that are to be made from this city.

P. E. Moise, field director for the Red Cross, stationed at Fort McPherson, was ordered Friday into the flood area with instructions to report to relief headquarters at Memphis.

The local Salvation army headquarters have a large quantity of clothing and other necessities ready for shipment.

MATHIS FINED $100 AFTER AUTO CRASH

Grady Mathis, of 288 Williams street, driver of an automobile which turned turtle on the morning of Christmas day at the Brookwood station curve on Peachtree road, was fined $100 and given a 12 months' suspended sentence Friday in Fulton superior court.

He was found guilty of operating the machine without the consent of the owner and of being under the influence of liquor at the time of the crash. He was given the 12 months' suspended sentence on the latter charge.

The car, a sports model, was the property of Clyde K. Byfield, Atlanta automobile dealer. Mathis claimed that he was employed by Byfield as a salesman and that the crash occurred while he was en route to the home of a prospective purchaser.

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your question bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

Yesterday's question was: Who was Cavendish?

The answer is: Cavendish was the pseudonym under which Henry Jones, England's most celebrated writer on card games, was known. He was born in London, November 2, 1831, and lived until about 70 years of age. While Whist was popular his books had an enormous sale in all parts of the world.

One of the questions most frequently asked concerning the scoring of the game is, how to score in the case of a revoke. I have before me a letter which comes from Dallas, Texas, in which the writer states that the score was 20 to 0, rubber game, in her favor; that her opponents obtained a Spade contract and made six Spades, but revoked. She claimed that the two tricks penalty for the revoke would give her nine points each and game; the opponents claimed that they could go game as they had four odd tricks left after paying the penalty. My correspondent further contended that the opponents could not score below the line at all after a revoke. She says that one opponent thought that neither side could go game, but did not know why; and that the other thought that both sides went game, but did not know which won the rubber.

No provision in any code of Bridge Laws ever allowed the adversaries of a Declarer to score below the line (two ward game). In the case in question, my correspondent was entitled to take two tricks, reducing the Declarer's tricks and augmenting her own by that number; but as this reduction of the Declarer's tricks did not take her below the amount bid, the contract was not defeated and my correspondent was not entitled to any score or trick-bonus whatever. Had the Declarer bid five and had her six odd tricks been reduced by the revoke penalty to four, my correspondent would have scored 20 for defeating the contract by one trick; but she did not defeat the contract, and the only revoke penalty in these days is tricks, not points. The Declarer was quite right in claiming game. She was left with four odd tricks at a Spade contract (36), and was entitled to her contract having been fulfilled to score them all.

The easiest way to interpret the Revoked Law of today is embodied in the following pointers:

A Revoke cost two tricks; after the penalty is paid, the score of the tricks is counted as they then stand just as if no Revoke had taken place.

GEORGIA POOLROOM LAW IS SUSPENDED

Operation of Georgia's poolroom and billiard law is suspended, in effect, as a result of a writ of error granted by Chief Justice Richard B. Russell of the state supreme court. R. B. Green, assistant attorney general, said Friday.

The writ allows C. P. Beatty and others of Atlanta, to carry on the United States supreme court a suit in which the constitutionality of the Georgia law is attacked. The law of 1923 prohibits members of the Caucasian race from operating billiard and pool rooms to be patronized by members of the negro race and provides further that only citizens of the United States may operate such businesses, the writ says.

At a meeting of the Alumni association of Fulton High school at the Henry Grady hotel, J. S. Heard, Jr., 29, was re-elected president of the association. Other officers chosen were Paul D. Waser, 21, vice president; Mrs. Fay Kate Batten, 21, secretary; Miss Melvina Wells, 25, treasurer; and Ralph R. Moore, 22, historian.

Class representatives on the executive committee were elected as follows: Vera Stittles, 17; Mrs. Fay Cook Stevenson, 18; Reed Taylor, 19; John J. Baker, 20; Elizabeth Hudson, 24; Robert Fulbright, 26; and Miss Jessie Plunkett, 27.

Mr. Moore, former principal of the high school, acted as toastmaster. Brief addresses were made by W. F. Dukes, principal of the school; W. S. Hopkins, former principal; Mrs. Thomas Lewis, of Hapeville; and Mr. Heard.

MRS. J. ALLEN COUCH REPORTED IMPROVED

Mrs. J. Allen Couch, wife of Alderman Couch, of the fifth ward, Friday was reported improving from an operation. She has been ill for about six weeks, and underwent a serious operation two weeks ago. Doctors said Friday that her condition, which for a time was critical, has steadily improved for the past several days, and that she is recovering rapidly.

OPPOSING FORCES DEBATE CHARTER

Opposing forces in the proposed city manager charter move for Atlanta sparred for advantage Friday night before an audience of 11th ward citizens at Whiteford avenue and Meridian street.

Horace Russell, leader of pro-charter forces, and John C. Cone, one of the champions of the present form of city government, locked horns in fiery denunciation and support, respectively, of their proposals.

Mr. Russell pleaded for what he called an efficient government in which he said all interests would fare alike, while Mr. Cone denounced sections of the proposed new charter which he declared are intended to set up in Atlanta a despotic city regime which would not be responsible to the sentiment nor amenable to the direct wishes of the people.

"I ask you to study this charter," Mr. Russell said, holding a copy of the proposed new instrument under which Atlanta would function if citizens favor it in the referendum of May 25. "It is a representation of the form of government it means that in the future the city will be operated without lost motion, expensive departments, divided responsibility due to a profusion of committees and departments, and all this with less expense," he said.

Cone Hits Proposal.

"This new form of government means that you turn over Atlanta to a group of politicians, who plan the greatest machine rule ever inaugurated in the entire south," Mr. Cone declared. "This charter was never written for Atlanta. It is a rehearsal of charters under which city managers are foisted off on unsuspecting cities. They already have been what will turn out to be a wholesale importation of foreigners to tell us what to do. This they can not deny because they imported Mayor Murray Seago, of Cincinnati, to speak here last night."

It will be a sad day when Atlantans can not operate their own government, but by suggestion and manipulation at least they have tried to force our good mayor, adopt a wholly inadequate system, crammed full of jokers and defects, and then sit back and let the political machine run the city to set up a take the town, lock stock and barrel. In addition, they have so protected the machine they propose that even if you become dissatisfied, you can not get rid of it without out-redding the council."

Unlimited Power Claimed.

"Under their plan you have a referendum on a change of government or any other matter. You may pass it overwhelmingly, but this all powerful council, backed by the city manager, can amend, alter change or absolutely nullify the referendum by a simple vote of eight or 15 members of council."

Charles M. Ford, alderman from the fourth ward, spoke in behalf of his candidacy, citing his record on which he predicted his claim for re-election. Everett Milligan, his opponent, also made a short address in a bid for votes.

Lindbergh Turns Down Big Money Offer.

Garden City, N. Y., May 13.—Sun-burned young Charles Lindbergh, his blonde flannel shirt open at the collar, told himself besieged in the manner of Red Grange when he crawled out from working on his Ryan trans-Atlantic monoplane Friday.

Certified checks ranging from $500 to $2,500 were waved in his face by competing agents, who wanted his name for articles, for use on helmets, for trademarking aviation accessories. Lindbergh waved them all away.

"I'm not going to accept anything until I become a success," he said. "And I shall not consider myself a success until I reach Le Bourget flying field in Paris."

OCEAN STORMS HALT PARIS FLIGHT START

But the flyers determined to wait, today's late weather reports were such that unfavorable weather may continue for two days.

Search for Flyers Vain.

Meanwhile the giant dirigible, Los Angeles, took off from its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., at 10:10 tonight and spent the entire day scouring the waters off San-tuck and the northern New England coast in an effort to locate the White Bird, which, with the two intrepid French flyers, Charles Nungesser and Francois Coll, at 10:10 tonight had been missing for 10 days.

The Los Angeles returned to her mooring mast at 7 o'clock tonight without having found any trace of the missing flyers.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur announced today that the bureau of aeronautics is considering the advisability of sending the Los Angeles tomorrow to carry on the search.

Wilbur said the navy department considers as plausible the theory of aeronautics experts that the two Frenchmen lost their course over Labrador. The only chance that the missing flyers have survived would be to be in the air when the Los Angeles had come down somewhere in the reaches of Newfoundland or Labrador and that the airman have not yet been able to communicate with the outside world.

Meanwhile, augmenting the cruise of the Los Angeles, a flotilla of coast guard patrol boats, a large fleet of sealanes and vessels of the trans-Atlantic commercial services continued their lookout for the two Frenchmen.

Byrd Meets Lindbergh.

Commander Byrd met young Lindbergh for the first time today in his hangar at Oriskany field. Byrd congratulated Lindbergh on his latest breaking flight from the west coast and volunteered to give him access to the weather maps being prepared for the American expedition to reach him and accepted the offer.

During their conversation it came out that the command of Lindbergh's machine, which was the first to be sent, incidentally that Byrd used his North Pole flight, had been 10 degrees off during the course of his trans-continental flight. Lindbergh, who was a little embarrassed, explained the discrepancy to his attention.

"Well, anything I can do here," he drawled, and that was that.

Lindbergh, who he hopes off for the French capital, will carry with him the golden word which Lindbergh, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, who tonight was speaking from Detroit to see her son before he starts, said before he departed for the east that her son telegraphed her he was ready to make the Paris flight, but she would not comment, fearing she feared any implied questions would hurt her son.

COOLIDGE ASSURES FRANCE OF U. S. AID.

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—President Coolidge today sent a message to President Doumergue of France, expressing the hope that the two French flyers, Nungesser and Coll, would be found and assuring France that the American government would do everything "humanly possible" in the search for them.

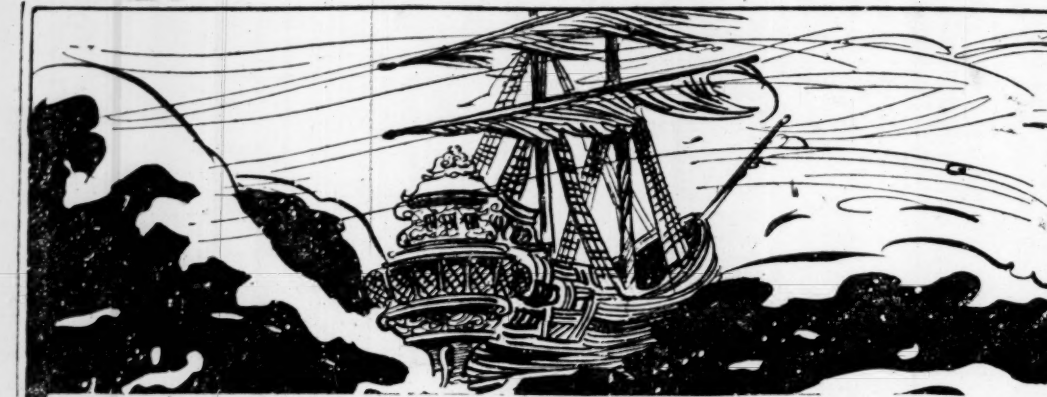

The feasibility of sending the dirigible Los Angeles as far north as the coast of Labrador in the search for the missing flyers was taken under consideration today by the navy.

$5,000 REWARD TO SPUR RESCUERS.

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—A reward of $5,000 from any aviator who discovers either of the missing French flyers or traces of their airplane, has been posted by the navy.

Announcement of the reward offer was made today by W. P. McCracken, one of the authorities at Draugh's Business College.

DRAKE'S PRAYER THAT HE MIGHT SAIL UPON THE PACIFIC OCEAN IN AN ENGLISH SHIP WAS NOW FULFILLED. BUT HIS INTRODUCTION TO THAT UNKNOWN SEA WAS ANYTHING BUT PLEASANT. MISLED BY THE SPANISH MAP HE WAS USING, HE SAILED NORTHWEST INSTEAD OF NORTH. THIS LED HIM INTO A STORM WHICH WAS UNPRECEDENTED. WITH ONLY SLIGHT INTERRUPTIONS IT LASTED FOR FIFTY-TWO DAYS, DURING WHICH WIND AND WAVE, SNOW AND RAIN, LASHED THE FLEET AND DROVE THE LITTLE VESSELS FAR TO THE SOUTHWARD. FINALLY THEY WERE SEPARATED. IN THE STRESS OF THE STORM, THE "MARIGOLD" WITH THIRTY MEN ON BOARD WAS LOST AND PASSED TO AN UNKNOWN FATE. THE "GOLDEN HIND" AND THE "ELIZABETH" MANAGED TO KEEP TO THE SAME COURSE. ON THE SEVENTH OF OCTOBER, THEY REACHED A HAVEN AMONG SOME SMALL ISLANDS, BUT THEIR SAFETY WAS SHORT-LIVED. THEIR ANCHORS DRAGGED AND BOTH WERE FORCED TO SEA WHICH THEY SUCCEEDED IN REACHING. HERE THEY WERE SEPARATED, AND NEVER MET AGAIN. DRAKE WITH THE "GOLDEN HIND" WAS LEFT ALONE—THE "ELIZABETH" EVENTUALLY REACHED ENGLAND AND REPORTED THE PROBABLE LOSS OF DRAKE.

MILITARY COURT ACQUITS FLIER

Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., May 13.—(AP)—The final chapter in the military investigation of the death of Frank G. Browder, wealthy planter, who was killed by a low-flying plane near here October 20, 1926, was written today when a court composed of 10 officers acquitted Lieutenant Arthur J. Leiman on charges of manslaughter and perjury.

The mystery remains unsolved after investigations by military authorities lasting for the past seven months and a special session of the Montgomery grand jury failed to identify the pilot guilty of the most unusual accident in the history of the United States air service. No stone was left unturned by the state, county and military authorities in their investigation.

Mr. Browder was killed when a plane bore down upon him from the rear as he was walking across a cotton field with a farm employee, an aged negro, who succeeded in saving himself by falling to the ground. The negro was unable to describe the plane or give any of the details connected with the accident.

Mr. assistant secretary of commerce, in charge of aviation.

Ortiz, an American, is now in Paris. He exhibited the offer to his attorney, George W. Burleigh, of New York, who notified the commerce department. The fund was posted with the Bank of America, 44 Wall street, New York.

Lindbergh Turns Down Big Money Offer.

Garden City, N. Y., May 13.—Sun-burned young Charles Lindbergh, his blonde flannel shirt open at the collar, told himself besieged in the manner of Red Grange when he crawled out from working on his Ryan trans-Atlantic monoplane Friday.

Certified checks ranging from $500 to $2,500 were waved in his face by competing agents, who wanted his name for articles, for use on helmets, for trademarking aviation accessories.

Lindbergh waved them all away.

"I'm not going to accept anything until I become a success," he said. "And I shall not consider myself a success until I reach Le Bourget flying field in Paris."

the awards, everyone is on an equal footing. No matter what your business is, want your profession is or where you reside, you can enter the contest at any time by sending an ad to the "Right-Ad" Contest Editor, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Rules.

1. The contest may be entered at any time by sending an advertisement to the "Right-Ad" Editor, The Atlanta Constitution.

2. Everyone may compete except professional advertisers and those who have already won.

3. Each ad must be on one side of the paper only—your name and address on the other side. Put as many ads as you wish in the same envelope.

4. The contest is under no obligation of any kind.

5. A different group of judges will be selected and announced each week from among Atlanta advertising men.

6. The names of all prize winners will be published each week and some of the prize-winning ads reproduced.

7. One hundred and twenty individual prizes will be awarded weekly—five prizes for the best ads on each advertiser.

8. The four grand cash prizes of $300, $200, $100 and $50 will be awarded to the four best ads of the entire contest.

(Copyright, 1925, Puckett & Plante.)

Suggestions.

An ad is a life and a life is a story. Prizes are awarded, not for technical make-up, but for ideas.

If you have any opinions, thoughts or ideas about the advertisers listed, you can win by advertising.

The shorter your ideas are, the better—the best newspaper ads are usually the shortest. A word, a phrase, a slogan, a jingle, a verse will be suitable.

Study the goods advertised if possible and write the ad to sell them. Visit the stores, for the knowledge to be gained thereby will prove mighty helpful.

Tips for contestants follow.

Draughn's Business College

Social standing and the part it plays in a life is what the student is taught as a theme for the first two weeks' ads on Draughn's Business College.

Call to mind the old saw: "Tell me with whom you go and I'll tell you who you are." As people are judged by their associates, so also are they judged by the schools they attend. In the all-important business of preparing for a good position and a successful career, students have a right to expect not only the thorough and complete training the employing public demands, but, what is equally important, association that is uplifting, honest and refined.

Because Draughn's Business College selects its own students, requiring character references from each applicant, based on friendship of which one can well be proud are assured those who attend this school. And one of the authorities at Draughn's indicated the other day, this

It is no little thing for a dairy to build a business to a gross volume in excess of $1,000,000 a year, but when a company achieves all this in eight short years it is truly remarkable. This is the record of the Pedigree Milk company, which has engaged in the wholesale milk business in Richmond, Va., and Jacksonville, Fla., for the past eight years. This company started business in Atlanta just one year ago and already has met with signal success.

Mothers of Confederate Soldiers

BLACK-DRAUGHT was used by the Confederate Forces in Georgia - - -

A war-time package of this popular, purely vegetable laxative medicine has been on exhibit for many years in a war relic museum on a southern battlefield which thousands of tourists visit every year.

ALTHOUGH the War Between the States was ended 62 years ago, two mothers of Confederate soldiers were living this year, in North Carolina. It is doubtful that more real "mothers of the Confederacy" are living in any other state. Both these remarkable old ladies have outlived their soldier sons.

Mrs. Rachel Riddle, of Barnardsville, N. C., saw her husband and her second child (her oldest son) in the Confederate military service. When well along in her 108th year, Mrs. Riddle gave the statement printed under her picture to the left. Newspaper reports indicated that nearly 600 descendants attended Mrs. Riddle's 107th birthday party July 26, last year. Eighty or more automobiles brought them into Barnardsville from miles and miles around. Mrs. Riddle said she enjoyed the celebration, but that she did not know all her youngest descendants who were among the guests. She has more than 60 grandchildren, the oldest of whom is past 80 years of age; and about 200 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Juliann Pridgen, of Currie, N. C., was born Nov. 3, 1823, about two miles from where she has since resided. Her husband, the late Alfred Pridgen, worked in a Confederate foundry at Wilmington, and Mrs. Pridgen's oldest son enlisted in the southern army. Six of her children were living this year, three of whom were unmarried and residing with their mother.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy in a nearby city sent a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Pridgen on the occasion of her 103rd birthday anniversary, and other southern societies have honored this distinguished North Carolinian.

Great-Grandmother of 200 Children

ON Feb. 4, 1927, Mrs. Riddle said: "We have used Black-Draught in our family for many years. We think it is the finest medicine for constipation that we have ever tried. My health has been generally very good, and I have not had much need for medicine, but a small dose, now and then, of Black-Draught will serve to keep a body in good shape.

"My children and grandchildren use it, too. My daughter keeps Black-Draught in the house almost all the time. We are rarely without it, as it has proved to be reliable and effective.

"I can recommend Black-Draught to others, for we have always found it to be a fine medicine, and we use it frequently in our home whenever we need a medicine for constipation."

Philibosian's Lower Prices Make Public Appreciate The Wisdom of Paying Cash

Stephen Philibosian, Inc. Beautiful Furniture, Rug and Drapery Store, Has Established Big Patronage.

The public now fully realizes the wisdom of the sales policy inaugurated by Stephen Philibosian, when he opened his beautiful furniture, rug and drapery store at 581 Peachtree street.

When this store was opened it was a struggle for cash. This was done because Stephen Philibosian realized that the cash store could sell for much lower prices than the credit store and there was absolutely no reason why this shouldn't apply to the furniture store as well as the cash grocery and the cash drug store.

That Mr. Philibosian was right is demonstrated by the large number of

'Gettin' Jim's Goat' Absorbs Employees Of Power Company

"Gettin' Jim's Goat" is not the title of a new farce comedy, but it has become one of the outstanding pastimes of the Georgia Power company's transportation department.

The goat is just a goat—Jim is Jim Gilbert, superintendent of Division C of the transportation department.

And now Division B has "got Jim's goat." They got it by winning the safety record for the past month. Besides the goat they win a banner. Both are awarded each month for excellence of safety record for that period.

For the past several months the Ashby street barn, satisfying its own appetite on everything from straw rails to Jim's spare socks. The goat is now in the hands of the transportation department. So long has the goat remained with Division C that it has come to be known as Jim's goat.

But now Jim's goat has been "got." Division B will celebrate the fact by a parade through the downtown section, with Jim's former goat leading the procession.

The actual ceremony of separating Jim from his goat will take place at the Ashby street barn, followed by the parade.

A special dinner at Peacock club will be held at 7 o'clock Monday night to celebrate the victory of Division B, headed by Fred Simpson. It is expected that safety competition for the coming month will be changed to getting Fred's goat. But the goat remains a gastronomic hero.

Underwood Church Plans Big Barbecue From 11 to 7 Today

With preparations made for serving 2,000 persons, Underwood Methodist church will hold a barbecue from 11 o'clock in the morning to 7 o'clock today, in a campaign to raise money to build a Sunday school annex for the church building, on the corner of Howell Mill road and De-Poor avenue.

Charles Granding, celebrated for his barbecue, has been secured to have charge.

Last winter the Underwood church raised money to pay off indebtedness on its lot and to build the church by funds raised by a big barbecue and will try the same plan again today.

In connection of an error printed earlier in the week A. H. Patton, in charge of arrangements, is superintendent of the Sunday school, instead of the pastor of the church, who is the Rev. H. M. Quillian.

Circumstances under which Warren killed another negro were such as to indicate that he had been forced into the fight, according to a statement made by the governor.

He stated that he had been furnished with information which led him to believe that the negro should have been tried for voluntary manslaughter. Warren will be taken to the state prison at Milledgeville to serve out his sentence.

SEEK DEFINITION OF TITLE RIGHTS

A suit seeking to secure judicial definition of their title rights in the property between the Union station and the Forsyth street viaducts now being used by the N. C. & St. L., the Georgia, Seaboard Air Line and Central of Georgia railroads, was filed Friday in Fulton superior court by heirs of the Samuel Mitchell estate.

The railroads now use the property by virtue of a perpetual easement granted by the late Mr. Mitchell in the form of a right-of-way and the heirs set out, in their petition for the judicial ruling, that the Mitchell Estate Inc. retains its property title in the land itself and in the air above the land.

The heirs have no intent, design or desire to delay, hamper or hinder the erection of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts which they have fully approved and believe will be beneficial to their property by enhancing its value. Frank Hooper Sr., attorney for the heirs, said Friday.

COUNCIL WILL STUDY ANNEXATION LAWS

The charter revision committee of city council will hold a public hearing Tuesday, May 24, on proposed annexation of territory designed to double the size of Atlanta, it was announced Friday.

Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, is author of a series of charter amendments which would authorize annexation of territory in the Druid Hills, west Atlanta and other sections of the city and permit incorporation within the city limits of East Point, College Park and Hapeville. The hearing will be confined to territory not included in suburban municipalities.

Council already has voted to ask the legislature to authorize annexation of East Point, College Park and Hapeville if those cities vote annexation. East Lake already has voted to come into the city, and the legislature is expected to empower the city to include that section at its next session.

312 Gallons Liquor, Two Cars Captured By Local Dry Agents

Two run-runners came to grief Thursday near Cumming in Forest county at the hands of prohibition agents, according to reports of Agents J. B. Wallace and F. C. Crow who captured two whisky-laden automobiles.

A total of 162 gallons of whisky was found in one of the automobiles after a chase of 10 miles, the driver of the car being forced to take to the woods when officers pressed him.

The other car contained 150 gallons of whisky, and also was abandoned by the driver, who found escape impossible when a tire went flat. Both cars were equipped with smoke screen apparatus, but the drivers did not find an opportunity to use the smoke, it was reported.

ATLANTA WOMEN MAKE 250 FLOOD GARMENTS

Sewing for infant children among the flood refugees of the Mississippi valley will continue today and through the first of next week with a goal of 5,000 garments as the local quota, according to an announcement Friday night by Mrs. W. H. Moor, chairman of a special committee of the Atlanta chapter, National Needlework guild, who is directing the effort measure.

More than 25 volunteers reported for duty Friday at McKenzie building headquarters of the work, and brought the total of finished garments up to 250, it was announced.

CHARTER OPPONENTS HIT "OUT-OF-TOWN" AID

A scathing exorcism of pro-charter advocates for "importing a crusade" to campaign for the proposed city manager system of government or Atlanta was released Friday by anti-charter forces in which it was charged that Mayor Murray Seasongood, of Cincinnati, who delivered an address here Thursday night, "learned just what Atlanta needs in 10 hours after reaching the city."

Charges of charter advocates that City Clerk Walter C. Taylor is a "political city manager" were branded as unfounded and "not justified by the facts." The statement, released from anti-charter campaign headquarters compared statistics of "prosperity" between Atlanta and what is called the "decadent city of Cincinnati."

An additional feature of the paper pointed out that charter advocates were forced to ignore a speaker in a movement for which "no outstanding Atlanta would speak."

SERVICE COMMISSION ANNOUNCES DECISIONS

Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

ALAN MAKES A RESOLUTION.

Sophy, lying back on the rough, scuffed cushions, trailing one hand in the water, was saying: "It was only that thing about my wishing Alan! That would be nice, wouldn't it?"

But as he asserted he noticed the shadow on her face. She was thinking, perhaps, of Giovanni. Would she—if it were possible—make a wish that would "blot out" that sturdy little body who had the beauty of seven angels? A wicked thought. No, one wouldn't; Sophy refused to be as wicked as that, and said so. No, nor would she blot out Cristina or

But here Alan chimed in and said that he had no scruples about wishing for anything he wanted when Piers was concerned.

Sophy said hastily: "We're getting too personal. I was just speaking generally."

"Oh, no, you weren't!" he contradicted.

Then he told her about Majorca, and about an artist friend of his who had once taken an unfurnished house there and fitted it up in the manner of a home for a few months.

According to his friend it had been a jolly, carefree existence. "I could work, I think, once I had you to myself again."

"And I'd cook and mend your clothes, like in the old days. What fun?"

But instantly the laughter died from her eyes and lips. "We're only talking make-believe, Alan. We can't do it."

Alan leaned towards her. "Why not?" he demanded.

"Because..."

"Of Cristina and the boy? I tell you, I've provided for them." (He Alan)—thus to take credit for Cristina's own foresight. "Are you afraid to be poor again?" he added bitterly.

"No, I'm not," Sophy's voice was aggressive and sudden.

"Then I suppose it's that Piers?"

"Yes, no, I hate Piers. There, I've said it! He—he's made me hate him. And you know I love you, Alan. No—it's something else. I guess I'm just afraid of making another mistake, or doing something else that's all wrong and for which I'd be sorry when it was too late."

Blank dismay seized him. This was a mood he did not know how to cope with; the talking it involved.

"But aren't things wrong as they stand? Before God, aren't you my wife? My wife, Sophy. Now for heaven's sake don't fling that old chestnut at me, about 'two wrongs never made a right'. I do believe you women can argue the hair off a brass monkey."

"I'm not arguing, Alan. O, and I'm so unhappy!"

"You deserve to be," he said angrily. "But I think you rather enjoy it, all the same. Go on, wallow. Just be rotundly unhappy, and everybody else, too. 'Come on in, the water's fine'. Let's all be miserable together."

Sophy made a face at him.

"Yes," he went on, his heart mounting—"and answer me this, if you can: Is it going to be any more comfortable for your Piers, or for Cristina, if you and I give each other up again? I warn you, that this time it'll be for keeps. If you don't come away with me, I'll never see you again in this world. I swear it. I'll go straight off and bury myself, alive or dead, it doesn't matter, where there'll be little chance of your coming to knock at the garden gate."

"O, Alan, you beast!"

"I don't care what you call me. Maybe I am a beast, but thank God

I've got enough sense to know what I can stand and what I can't. It takes a woman for these moral endurance tests. And you're not honest, Sophy. You know you can't stand it, either—only you want to put it all on me."

"O, Alan you are a beast!"

"You can't face the truth, that's what the matter with you."

"You mean I don't face it. And, anyway, I'll take more than you. Alan Brooke, to prove to me what the real truth is."

"O, I'm not so sure I can't. Isn't it that we grew up together, got married—and—er—still love each other?"

"Stupid, Alan—look at all you've left out!" Sophy said gently.

"Nothing that matters," he muttered.

"If you were a Roman Catholic."

"I'm not."

"Well, Cristina is. She'd be horrified if she knew the facts. She wouldn't consider that she was married to me at all."

"I'm not so sure," Sophy said.

"You can't dispose of Cristina as easily as all that. Not of Piers."

"We're not discussing Piers or his religious beliefs—if he's got any," Alan said furiously.

"But of course if you're so attached to him, that's a different matter. Shall we start back now? I shouldn't wonder if he was down at the harbor to welcome us or something."

"O, Alan!"

Sophy crawled to him and hid her head against his knee. She left work and school and home, but she could manage without it.

He took her head between his hands, pressing it in an agony of tenderness. "You do still care for me, old girl?" His voice was suddenly husky, stripped of that harsh note of bravado.

"Yes, I care more than I ever thought I could—more, even than in the old days. I was selfish, then. I thought too much of what seemed my 'rights'. Poor Alan! Just as though you left the little baby die on purpose. Why, you were fond of her, too, Alan! And I—I was the beast. O, dear, O, dear, what shall I do! I want you so. I do want to go away with you and forget everything that's ever happened in between. But the ghosts, Alan—the living ghosts. How they haunt us! And what are we to do? I don't see how I'm to give you up. I haven't got the strength for it. Your dear hands, Alan!"

She held them to her face, and then suddenly everyone by a miracle, she looked at one and bursting into tears passionately killed a fear that ran across the palm to the base of his thumb.

Of course it's still there! Do you remember, Alan? That day—we were about fourteen, weren't we?—when we quarreled about something and I pushed you into the cold frame? And you cut your poor hand! O, what a time! And you wouldn't let them punish me. You said you'd fallen into the frame by accident, even though that awful little tell-tale Mattie Drayton told dad I'd pushed you."

"It's all right, old girl. Now you just calm down," Alan said gruffly.

"We'll get back to San Remo, now. And you may take it from me we're not going to give each other up. I don't care what you say or anything about it, except that—we're not going to give each other up."

He helped her to her cushions and then took up the cushions, rowing to grin purpose. It wasn't a very light heart, but somehow he seemed to make it fairly skim across the water and soon they became less of a speck on a vast and empty waste, and there was a long breakwater, and presently the pebbled little stretch of beach by the bathing hut, where they grounded and the boatman and his boy pulled up the boat and steamed it while they climbed ashore.

But this day struck itself out even a little longer. It was hard to part. They went up into the town and

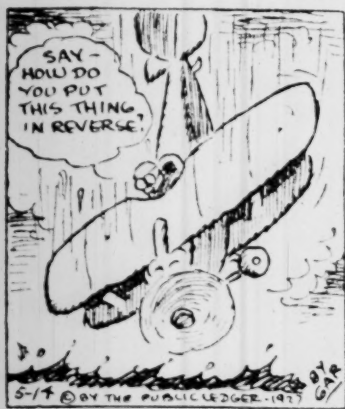

Sandy appeared to have gained in boldness or perhaps it was indifference, for she did not object when Alan suggested tea, and even let him choose a series of which was crowded with English tourists, many of whom might easily be from Bodikhera; afterwards—still loath to part—she took a taxi and drove back to Bodikhera together, holding hands all the way, and straight up to the very gates of the Villa Mona.

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, May 13.—Thinking that the good news was with the declaration of the 82 extra General Motors, professional traders began at the opening of the stock market to sell borrowed stocks short. Good buying, however, in good stocks was immediately reflected, checking the decline and turning the market face about. When the Street common 40 per cent dividend was declared, professional traders selling borrowed stocks short were fooled this same way.

At the opening of the market, General Motors was set heavily, professional traders buying that they would soon knock the extra 82 dividend off the price of the stock. General Motors during the early trading declined 1 1/2 points to its closing price of 194 1/4. By noon, however, the price was up to 192, showing a decline of 2 1/2 points, but the price was immediately added to the price of 192 instead of being knocked off.

Estimates place General Motors earnings for the second quarter of the year at $150 a share for the common stock, making $152 a share for the first half of the year. Those who bought General Motors today figured that there would be more extra dividends before the close of 1927 and hence that all of the good news was not out.

Today's stock market might be called a "blue chip" market. Most of the activity was in General Motors, Steel common, Baldwin, Pullman, and other high priced issues. The last named stock closing at 204 1/2 up to 220 by noon.

Buyers of Nickel Plate were anticipating a favorable merger decision by the interstate commerce commission in the pending hearings and also some report of a distribution of Nickel Plate stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio stock held by Nickel Plate. If there is a distribution of stock amounting to 1 1/2 shares of Chesapeake & Ohio for each outstanding Nickel Plate share of stock.

There are people in Wall street who continue to believe that the stock market is premature in jumping at the conclusion that the interstate commerce commission is going to approve the application of the Chesapeake & Ohio to have Chesapeake & Ohio take over Erie, Pure Marquette and later Nickel Plate. From the point of view of the interstate commerce commission, the whole question hangs on whether or not the proposed merger will be in the interest of the public. So far this has remained an open question.

In the latest testimony President Harahan admits that Chesapeake & Ohio is also negotiating for control of the Virginia road. This is the same road built by the late M. H. Rogers out of his personal fortune to compete with Chesapeake & Ohio and the Norfolk & Western in the soft coal territory.

Numbers of Intelligent Wall Street Brokers Believe the Market Is Premature in Trading With Belief I. C. C. Will Approve Rail Merger.

Wall street's best guess is that New York Central, not liking the need for Nickel Plate in its own merger plans, turned its Nickel Plate stock over to the Van Sweringen, expecting Nickel Plate to be sold to the Chesapeake & Ohio, which would be friendly to the New York Central system. With the aid of friendly bankers the Van Sweringens were able to secure a stock loan on this Nickel Plate stock and other stocks acquired while working up their merger plans. In the meantime the price of the stocks involved has advanced greatly in price. Only a few days ago it was possible for the Van Sweringens to raise $48,000,000 through the sale of 20 per cent bonds of Chesapeake & Ohio stock owned. If this same process is continued it means success for both New York Central and the Van Sweringens in their original plan. Whether these plans, however, are in the best interest of the public is a question for the interstate commerce commission to decide and a very important one on the whole question of railroad mergers now before the financial press.
